User Interfaces

Conclusion and future work

The future of any project depends on its power to innovate, simplify and create solutions that solves the user's problems. And we're definitely going to do just that, from enhancing current solutions to discovering new and ambitious problems. To give a small example, our current algorithm to solve the super resolution problem is very complex in both runtime and the way it works, as well as the process of making the pictures or videos ready to be sent to our server and sending them back to the user is still not the best which also add time to how much a user wait to get their result back.
